

Why becoming a FINBRAIN-ITC Member ?

The role of the treasury professional has evolved rapidly over the last ten years. In addition to the basics of banking relationships and cash management, treasury managers have to inform themselves about developments in computer systems, electronic commerce, risk management, cheque fraud, pension planning, accounting standards and a variety of other issues.

More than ever, treasury practitioners also have to participate with other managers to co-ordinate the flow of financial information throughout an organization.

Through their membership with FINBRAIN-ITC, treasury and financial managers keep themselves up-to-date on trends within the treasury function and on developments within a broader context of economic, financial and political affairs.

They do this by interacting with other practitioners in the field at local, regional and national events, by attending FINBRAIN-ITC conferences and seminars and by joining FINBRAIN-ITC bi-monthly publications.
